RÉAMHRÁ

Fáilte chuig Nuascríbhneoireacht na Gaeilge, an foilseachán is déanaí de chuid Litríocht Éireann ina gcuirtear léargas ar fáil ar an scríbhneoireacht chomhaimseartha Ghaeilge a foilsíodh le linn na gcúig bliana seo a chuaigh thart.

Beidh a fhios agaibhse atá cleachta lenár gcuid oibre gur chuimsigh Litríocht Éireann saothair arna bhfoilsíú í nGaeilge inár gcatalóg cheart bhliantúil New Writing from Ireland le blianta fada agois. Cuirtear an chatalóg sin i láthair ag aontaí leabhar móra ar fud an domhain agus scaiptear go forleathan ar fhoilsitheoirí, ar aistritheoirí agus ar stiúrthóirí féilte litríochtaí. Le tamall maith agois, áfach, bhraitheamar go raibh na leabhair Ghaeilge a bhí liostaithe sa chatalóg sin i mbaol a mbáite ag na foilseacháin níos iomadúla i mBéarla a foilsíodh inti. Dá bhrí sin tá áthas mór agus bród orainn an chatalóg speisialta seo a fhoilsíú, Nuascríbhneoireacht na Gaeilge, atá tiomnaithe don scríbhneoireacht Ghaeilge d'aoساigh agus d'aoساigh óga/do pháistí. Táimid muiníneach go mbeidh spéis ag léitheoirí ar fud an domhain sa saothar seo.

I nDaonáireamh na hÉireann 2016 léirigh 1.76 milliún duine go raibh siad in ann an Ghaeilge a labhairt, agus cé go bhfuil cainteoirí Gaeilge ina mionlach in Éirinn, tá earnáil chultúrtha agus liteartha bheo ar fáil chun tacú le scríbhneoirí, le foilsitheoirí agus le léitheoirí. Ar aon dul lena sainchúram, is mian le Litríocht Éireann an obair sin a thabhairt thar lear, chun feasacht a ardú ar a bhfuil ag tarlú i saol liteartha na Gaeilge agus chun tacú le scríbhneoirí a scríobhann í nGaeilge. Níl sa chatalóg seo ach sampla beag den réimse leathan saothar liteartha saibhir a scríobhtar í nGaeilge.

Cuireann tithe foilsitheoireachta amhail An Gúm, Cló lar-Chonnacht agus Futa Fata le New Writing from Ireland ar bhonn rialta. Is taispeántóirí rialta iad Leabhar Breac agus Cló lar-Chonnacht ag aontaí leabhar idirnáisiúnta. Ó bunaíodh í, bhí áthas ar Litríocht Éireann tacú le haistriúcháin ar an scríbhneoireacht Ghaeilge. Is dearbhú breise é an rath iontach ar an úrscéal cumasach Gaeilge Cré na Cille le Máirtín Ó Cadhain, atá aistrithe agois go níos mó ná dosaen teanga, ar líon na ndeiseanna idirnáisiúnta a d'fhéadfadh a bheith ann don scríbhneoireacht Ghaeilge tríd an aistríúchán.

Cuirimid fáilte roimh iarratais ar dheontais aistríúcháin ceithre huaire in aghaidh na bliana. Tabhair cuairt ar ár suíomh gréasáin literatureireland.com chun a fháil amach conas is féidir le foilsitheoirí iarratas a dhéanamh ar dheontas aistríúcháin ar líne.

Ba mhaith liom an deis seo a ghlacadh chun buíochas a ghabháil leis na foilsitheoirí uile a chuir teidil isteach le cuimsíú in Nuascríbhneoireacht na Gaeilge. Táimid buíoch as bhur gcomhoibriú agus as bhur dtiomantas dár gcuid oibre.

Tá buíochas mór tuillte ag Hannah Rice a chuir an chatalóg in eagair mar chomheagarthóir agus a bhainistigh an tionscadal ó chéimeanna luatha na pleánaíla in 2020 go dtí an foilsíú.

Táimid ag trúth agois le go leor aistríúchán ar na leabhair sin a fheiceáil sna blianta atá le teacht.

WELCOME

Welcome to Nuascríbhneoiréacht na Gaeilge, Literature Ireland's latest publication, which presents a snapshot of contemporary writing published in the Irish language over the past five years.

Those of you who are familiar with our work will know that, for many years now, Literature Ireland has included works published in the Irish language in our annual New Writing from Ireland rights catalogue. This catalogue is presented at the major world book fairs and distributed widely to publishers, translators and literature festival directors. For some time, however, we have felt that books in the Irish language, listed in that catalogue, run a risk of being overshadowed by the more numerous English-language titles carried in it. And so we are very pleased and proud to publish this special catalogue, Nuascríbhneoiréacht na Gaeilge, which is dedicated to writing in the Irish language for adults and young adults/children. We are confident that this work will appeal to readers across the world.

In the 2016 Census of Ireland, 1.76 million people indicated that they could speak Irish and, although Irish-language speakers may be in the minority in Ireland, there is a vibrant cultural and literary sector in place to support writers, publishers and readers. In keeping with its remit, Literature Ireland wishes to bring this work abroad, building an awareness of what is happening in the Irish-language literary scene and helping to support writers who write in Irish. This catalogue is only a small sample of the breadth of rich literary works written in the Irish language.

Publishing houses such as An Gúm, Cló Iar-Chonnacht and Futa Fata regularly contribute to New Writing from Ireland. Leabhar Breac and Cló Iar-Chonnacht are also frequent exhibitors at international book fairs. Literature Ireland has, since its establishment, been pleased to support translations of writing in the Irish language. The phenomenal success of the great Irish-language novel Cré na Cille by Máirtín Ó Cadhain, which has now been translated into over a dozen languages, further confirms just how many international opportunities there can be for great Irish-language writing through translation.

Literature Ireland welcomes applications for translation grants four times a year. Please visit our website, literatureireland.com, to learn how publishers can apply for a translation grant online.

I should like to take this opportunity to thank all the publishers who submitted titles for inclusion in Nuascríbhneoiréacht na Gaeilge. We are grateful for your collaboration and commitment to our work.

Great thanks is due to Hannah Rice, who co-edited the catalogue and managed the project from the early planning stages in 2020 through to publication.

We now look forward to seeing many translations of these books in the years to come.

PÁDRAIC BREATHNACH

DIALANN MO MHÁTHAR

Mídhílseacht phósta atá mar ábhar san úrscéal seo. Lánuin óg, Péarla is Sylvester. Ach gur trí shúile na hiníne, Éabha, a insítear an scéal, bunaithe ar dhialann de chuid a máthar ar thángthas uirthi i lochta an tí.

‘Ní go rómhinic a bhaineann úrscéal deoir asam. B’ín a tharla, áfach, agus Dialann Mo Mháthar le Pádraic Breathnach á léamh agam. Is fada ó chuaigh leabhar i bhfeidhm chomh mór sin orm ach chaoin mé uisce mo chinn agus mé meallta isteach i scéal agus i saol truachroíoch na gcarachтар. Ní haon ionadh gur bhain an t-úrscéal seo an chéad duais i gcomórtas úrscéalaíochta an Oireachtais, 2016.’ — Léirmheas le hÁine Ní Ghlinn, Comhar, Meán Fómhair, 2018.

Is scríbhneoir bisiúil as Maigh Cuilinn ó dhúchas é Pádraic Breathnach agus é ar dhuine de mhórscríbhneoirí comhaimseartha na Gaeilge.

The focus of this novel is the marital infidelity of a young couple, Péarla and Sylvester. However, it is through the eyes of their daughter, Éabha, that the story is told. It is based on her mother’s diary, which she comes across in the attic of their house.

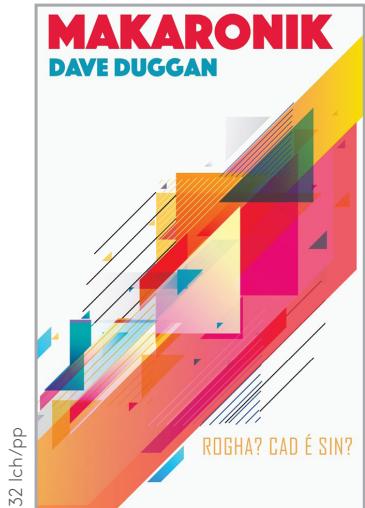

‘It’s not often that a novel makes me cry. But that’s what happened when I read Dialann Mo Mháthar by Pádraic Breathnach. It’s a long time since a book has affected me that much but I bawled crying after being drawn into the story and into the pitiful life of the characters. It’s no surprise that this novel won first prize in the novel category of the Oireachtas competition in 2016.’ — A review by Áine Ní Ghlinn, Comhar, September 2018.

DAVE DUGGAN MAKARONIK

Úrscéal suite i bhfo-ionad sonraí, i nDoire, ar imeall na hImpireachta, sa bhliain 2584. Na rudaí is tábhactaí san Impireacht ná dualgas agus dílseacht. Níl an focal 'rogha' san Empirish, teanga na hImpireachta. Tagann Diarmuid agus Gráinne, oifigigh mheáncchéime de chuid na hImpireachta, leis an fho-ionad a dhruidim agus an t-oifigeach bunchéime, Makaronik, a thabhairt ar ais go dtí an Lár leo. Sin an dualgas s'acu. Níl aon rogha acu. Ach diúltáionn Makaronik dul leo. An bhfuil an rogha aici?

A novel set in the year 2584, in a data subcentre in Derry, on the outskirts of the Empire. Duty and loyalty are valued above all else in the Empire. The word 'choice' does not exist in Empirish, the language of the Empire. Diarmuid and Gráinne, two middle-grade officers of the Empire, are sent to close the data subcentre and to bring the entry-level officer, Makaronik, back to the Centre. That's their duty. They don't have a choice. But Makaronik refuses to go with them. Does she have any choice?

Is úrscéalaí is drámadóir é Dave Duggan, a bhfuil cónaí i nDoire air. Tá a shaothar amharclainne feicthe in Éirinn, Dún Éideann, Learpholl, Nua-Eabhrac agus san Afganastáin. An dráma is déanaí uaidh ná Chezzie's Chance (Blue Eagle Productions, 2018), a raibh an-rath air a léiriú ag Féile Snag-Cheoil Dhoire. Scríobh sé Gruagairí (2007), a bhuaigh gradam Stewart Parker Trust. I measc a shaothar fá choinne scannán is teilifise tá Dance Lexie Dance (Raw Nerve Productions, 1996), a fuair ainmniúchán le haghaidh Ghradaim Oscar. I measc a shaothar eile tá A Sudden Sun (Guildhall Press, 2012) agus Related Lives: An Imagined Memoir (Guildhall Press, 2016).

Seo an tríú húrscéal bleachtaireachta do dhaoine fásta le Anna Heussaff. Dhá dhúnmharú sa chillín céanna i bPríosún Chill Mhaighneann i mBaile Átha Cliath, ceann acu sa lá atá inniu ann agus an ceann eile sa naoú haois déag. Cén ceangal dáiríre atá eatarthu?

Is úrscéalta bleachtaireachta iad Bás Tobann (Cois Life, 2004), Buille Marfach (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2010) agus Scáil an Phríosúin: tá na lárcharachtaí chéanna iontu ach tá an chéad dá cheann suite ar chósta an iardheiscirt agus an tríú ceann i gceantar stairiúil Chill Mhaighneann sa phríomhchathair, áit a bhfuil cónaí ar Anna Heussaff le fada.

This is the third of three detective novels for adults by Anna Heussaff. Two murders in the same cell in Kilmainham Gaol in Dublin, one today, the other in the nineteenth century. What is the link between them?

Bás Tobann (Cois Life, 2004), Buille Marfach (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2010) and Scáil an Phríosúin are detective novels: they all feature the same main characters but the first two are set on the southwest coast, while the third is set in the historical Kilmainham area of Dublin, where Anna Heussaff has lived for many years.

Since she began writing creatively in 2002, Anna Heussaff has published seven Irish-language novels. Vortex (Cois Life, 2006), Hóng (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2012) and Sárú (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2017) are a series of mystery novels for young readers between 10 and 14 years old. Video games play a central role, as well as major environmental issues and other challenges that young people face.

This small epic is a lively retelling of the arrival of the Tuatha Dé Danann, a story about the origin of the Gael and the sovereignty and heritage of Ireland, both old and new.

How did Nuadha lose his arm, who was Lugh Lámhfada, what prophecy does Balar na Súile Nimhe receive, and what sort of assembly of women does Dagħda have on the banks of the Erne? The book follows the arrival and departure of the Tuatha Dé Danann and details the first day that the Gael set foot on the shore of the island of Fódhla.

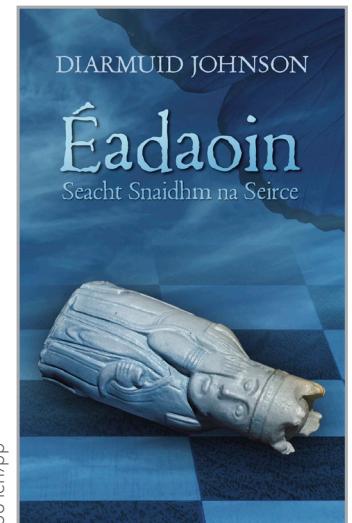

Tuatha Dé Danann: Seilbh Inse Fódlá was named 'Book of the Year' at the An Post Irish Book Awards in 2018.

ÉADAON: SEACHT SNAIDHM NA SEIRCE

136 lch/pp

Is é scéal Éadaoine scéal mór grá na Sean-Ghaeilge, scéal nár mhair ach ina bhlúirí. Tá an t-ábhar sin ar fad fite in aon scéal amháin anseo – na bearnaí líonta, agus feoil curtha ar na cnámha – ionas gur eipic nua atá againn atá inchurtha le scéal Héilín na Traí, nó le scéal Tristan agus Íosóid.

Bean de shliocht éanlaith an tsí í Éadaoin. Is í ba bhanchéile d'Eochaíd Rí na Teamhrach. Ach is do Mhidhir a thug sí grá a croí, do Mhidhir an tsí, Mhidhir Bhrí Léith, Mhidhir na háille agus na mbriathra meala.

Uaigneas na mban is ábhar don scéal seo. Uaigneas mná a fágadh gan ceachtar den bheirt a bhí luaite léi, céile ná leannán. Ós de shliocht na mbuan an bhean sin, is buan síoraí an t-uaigneas atá le fulaingt aici. Seanscéal faoi chulaith nua, seantéama comhaimseartha, scéal téagartha tragóideach faoi sheacht snaidhm na seirce.

File, ceoltóir, scríbhneoir agus scoláire é Diarmuid Johnson. In Cardiff na Breataine Bige a rugadh é in 1965. Cuireadh oideachas air i nGaillimh idir 1970 agus 1989. The story of Éadaoin is our finest Old-Irish love story, a story that survives only in fragments. All these various fragments have been combined and knitted into a whole – filling the gaps and adding flesh to the bones – to create a new epic comparable to The Iliad or Tristan and Isolde.

Éadaoin is a bird-woman of the Fairy People. She was the wife of Eochaíd, King of Tara, but Midhir was her true love, Midhir of the Fairy People, Midhir of Brí Léith, the handsome and sweet-spoken Midhir.

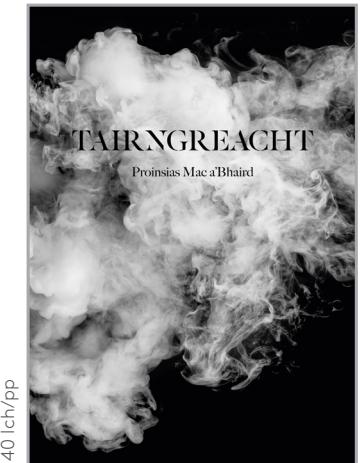

This is a story about the loneliness felt by women. The loneliness of a woman who was left without husband or lover. As she is of the immortal people, this loneliness is everlasting. This is an old tale in a new guise, both an old and a contemporary theme, a great tragedy about the seven binding knots of love.

Diarmuid Johnson is a poet, musician, writer and scholar. He was born in Cardiff, Wales, in 1965 and educated in Galway between 1970 and 1989. He holds a doctorate in Celtic Studies. Since 1989, he has spent time as a university lecturer in Wales, Brittany, Germany and Poland.

He has won the Gradam Uí Shúilleabháin award twice, as well as an award at the An Post Irish Book Awards.

TAIRNGREACHT

Cuirtear saol Chonchúir Uí Bhraonáin bun os cionn go hiomlán nuair a thagann sé ar dhúnmarú scáfar ar mhullach uaigheanna Uí Néill agus Uí Dhónaill sa Róimh. Gan mhoill tá a bheatha féin i mbaol. Is léir, áfach, nach Conchúr amháin atá i gcontúirt agus go bhfuil comhcheilg ar siúl a bainfeadh an bonn de chumhacht an Phápa agus a chuirfeadh deireadh leis an Eaglais.

Má tá Conchúr le teacht slán, caithfidh sé aghaidh a thabhairt ar sheict dhorchá a bhfuil a fréamhacha aici sa luath-Chríostaíocht féin. Mura n-éiríonn leis an mhisteoir a réiteach in am, fíorófar an tairngreacht uafásach a rinneadh míle go leith bliain ó shin; tairngreacht a d'athródh an saol go deo.

Rinneadh cur síos ar Phroinsias Mac a'Bhaid mar 'Dan Brown na Gaeilge'. Is cinnte go bhfuil an mhisteoir agus an phlotaireacht bhríomhar chéanna, a choinneodh i do shuí mall san oíche thú, sna húrscéalta uaidh. Tá cónaí ar an údar i dTír Chonaill, lena chúram agus lena mhadadh Pluto, áit a n-oibríonn sé mar mháistir scoile.

Conchúr Ó Braonáin's life is completely turned upside down when he discovers a horrific murder scene atop the graves of the Gaelic lords Aodh Ó Néill and Aodh Ó Dónaill in Rome. Before long, he finds that his own life is in danger. It is clear, however, that Conchúr is not the only one in harm's way and that there is a conspiracy to overthrow the Pope and destroy the Church.

If Conchúr is to survive, he must confront a dark sect whose roots stretch back to early Christianity. If he doesn't succeed in solving the mystery in time, the catastrophic prophecy made 1,500 years earlier will be manifested: a prophecy that will change the world forever.

Faoi mar is dual di, tá guth na mban chun cinn sna scéalta seo a chíorann an mion agus an móra ar aon: cultúr an eáginthe agus na náire, foréigean agus teannas polaitiúil, ach chomh maith leis sin, dlúithe teaghlaigh agus soineantacht na hóige. 'This is another well-written, easy-to-read collection from Réaltán Ní Leannáin's pen. As is her wont, the voice of women is at the forefront of these stories that examine both little and large issues: rape culture and shame, violence and political tensions, but as well as that, the closeness of family and the innocence of youth. Ní Leannáin also possesses a special talent for breathing life into the speech of her characters, especially young children. This is a talent that breathes humour and life into her stories, even when discussing serious topics.'

FEARGAL Ó BÉARRA AN TROMDHÁMH

Cuairt a thug Seanchán Ollamh agus a chuideachta ar an rí, agus saint is síorélimh na cuideachta ainmheasártha sin – idir filí, cheoltóirí, bhantracht is ghiollaí – is údar don aoirscéal binb-bhriathrach seo ó pheann anaithnid thart ar an mbliain 1300.

Scéal iltéamach ilchisealach é 'Tromdhámh Guaire' a bhfuil cuid dá phréamha ag síneadh siar chomh fada leis an seachtú haois, tréimhse a shamhlaítear le triúr dá mhórphearsana, Seanchán Toirpéist féin, Dallán Forgaill, agus Guaire an Oinigh. Sa leagan nuachóirithe seo, tugtar friotal is foghar an tseanscéil slán go soléite do léitheoir na haoise seo.

Coisfharraigeach de dhúchas Mhaigh Eo é Feargal Ó Béarra.

Le blianta beaga anuas, tá athchóiriú déanta ag an mBéarrach ar phéire de sheanscéalta móra na Gaeilge, 'Tromdhámh Guaire' agus 'Buile Shuibhne'. Bhain sé 'Leabhar na Blíana' 2019 amach leis An Tromdhámh, agus bhí an leabhar céanna ar ghearrliosta 'An Post Irish Book Awards' na bliana sin. In 2021 a foilsíodh an leabhar is nuaí leis, Mé Suibhne.

This satirical, biting story, from an unknown pen from circa 1300, is based on a visit Seanchán Ollamh paid to the king, and the greed and never-ending demands of the inordinate company there – from poets to musicians, the women and the servants.

Tromdhámh Guaire is a multi-themed story whose roots reach back as far as the seventh century, a period linked to three major personalities, Seanchán Toirpéist himself, Dallán Forgaill, and Guaire an Oinigh. In this newly adapted, very accessible version, the flow and sound of the old story are brought to a modern audience.

Cormac Mac Guidhir is a young man who is hellbent on avenging his father's ruination at the hands of scurrilous bankers. The conniving and deceitful acts of crooked financiers led to the closure of his father's business, mental breakdown and ruination. But their roguery will not be forgiven. The banks will pay for it, and in a way that they could never have imagined – indeed, in a way that Cormac himself could not have imagined.

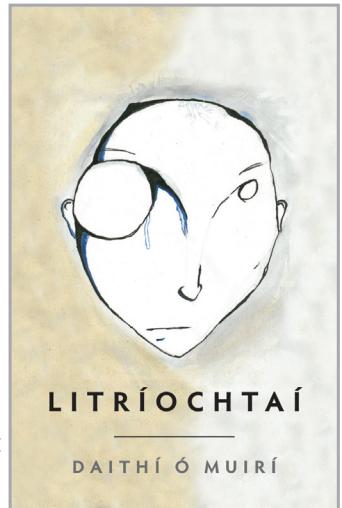

The multiple threads of this sensitive and award-winning tale are skilfully woven into a mesmeric tapestry of intrigue, adventure and philosophy. The book has been described by literary award judges as 'an exceptional work in every way'.

Ré Ó Laighléis has been a full-time, professional writer since 1992. He writes for all age groups, in English and Irish, focusing particularly on novels, short stories and stage plays. Many of his writings have been translated into various other languages.

Cnuasach gearrscéalta le Daithí Ó Muirí, d'fhéadfai splancscéalta a thabhairt orthu, a bhformhór dó nó trí de leathanaigh ar a bhfad. Agus, ar ndóigh, céard is splancscéal ann ach ainm nua ar sheanfhoirm an ghearrscéil.

Tá na scéalta seo lomlán de chomharthaí sóirt: an té atá imithe amú sa nua-aois agus é sa tóir ar . . . ní fios. Más duairc, gruama an domhan a chuireann Daithí Ó Muirí os ár gcomhair uaireanta ina chuid scríbhneoireachta, é fuar, lom, folamh agus carachtair ag imeacht leo gan sprioc gan aidhm gan chiall gan reasún, ní fhágann sin nach bhfuil corrlasair le brath thall agus abhus sa dorchadas arb é an saol é. Is mithid dúnne, na léitheoirí, na lasracha sin a aithint.

Is as Co. Mhuineachán ó dhúchas do Dhaithí Ó Muirí, ach tá cónaí air in Indreabhán, i gConamara, le blianta fada anuas. Is scríbhneoir lánimseartha é, agus tá an-suim aige i saothar gearrscéalaithe Spáinnseacha agus Francacha.

Tá dhá chnuasach gearrscéalta foilsithe aige go dtí seo – Seacht Lá na Díleann (Leabhar Breac, 1998) agus Cogaí (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2002). Tá úrscéal foilsithe aige leis, Ré (Cló Iar-Chonnacht, 2012).

This is a collection of short stories from Daithí Ó Muirí that could be described as flash fiction as most of these stories are only two or three pages long. What is flash fiction, however, but a new name for the old short story format?

These stories are jam-packed with common tropes: the person lost in the modern world who is searching for . . . who knows what? The world presented in Daithí Ó Muirí's short stories is sometimes grim and desolate. His characters lost and wandering in the world. For all that, you can sense that there is a light of hope that flickers here and there and that it is worth watching out for it.

Anuas air sin, tá mac an tiarna, Feilimí Caoch, an gaiscíoich mealltach ar mian le Conchúr é a mhúnlú mar phrionsa Eorpach ar an déanamh nua.

Tyrone 1539: Conn Bacach is a lord and his sons are competing to win his favour. This is the story of Conchúr Mac Ardal: a cleric, a father and his lord's high executive. Conchúr's vision is to further and promote the lordship. Between him and the fulfilment of this vision are many things – his master's fickleness, the jealousy of the nobles, an empty treasury, family matters, and his own weaknesses as a person. As well as all of this, there is the lord's son, Feilimí Caoch, the attractive warrior who Conchúr wants to mould into a modern European prince.

This first novel in the Dominium series won the Oireachtas Award in 2020. While this story is situated in Ireland, this is a universal story that is part of European history.

ALAN TITLEY

LÁMH, LÁMH EILE

248 Ich/pp

Úrscéal cruabhruite bleachtaireachta. Baineann le hÉirinn na linne. Tá eachtraí anseo atá suite i mBaile Átha Cliath, i mBéal Feirste, i gCill Chainnigh, i gContae na Mí, i gCorcaigh, i nGaillimh, i nDoire Cholm Cille agus in áiteanna eile idir eatarthu.

Is é atá sa bhunscéal ná cé leis na lámha?

Ní foláir dár mbleachtaire an scéal a tháighdeadh siar go bun. Is léir ceangal éigin, dá dhiamhaire é, a bheith idir na lámha a teasadh ó dheas agus ó thuaidh.

Tá an uile rud anseo, bleachtaí ar cuma leo, Gardaí a bhfuil a bpraghас acu (b'fhéidir), Rúisigh le hiomad airgid, lucht siúil barbartha agus béisach, iománaithe ar an gcláí, mná an leanna a thuigeann agus nach dtuigeann, ach thar aon rud eile, léargas ar an taobh sin de shaol na hÉireann nach bhfeictear ach sna cinnlínite.

Duine de mhórscríbhneoirí agus de mhórscoláirí na Gaeilge é Alan Titley. Tá idir úrscéalta, ghearrscéalta, dhrámaí don státse agus don raidió, scripteanna teilihíse agus shaothair acadúla scríofa aige. Bhí sé ina Ollamh le Nua-Ghaeilge i gColáiste na hOllscoile Corcaigh go dtí gur éirigh sé as sa bhliain 2011 agus é ina Ollamh Emeritus ó shin.

A hardboiled detective novel set in contemporary Ireland and a gripping journey taking the reader from Dublin to, in no particular order, Belfast, Kilkenny, County Meath, Cork, Galway, Derry and all other places in between.

The crux of the novel is this: who owns these hands?

What's the connection between the hand in the South and the hand in the North? And who's missing all these body parts?

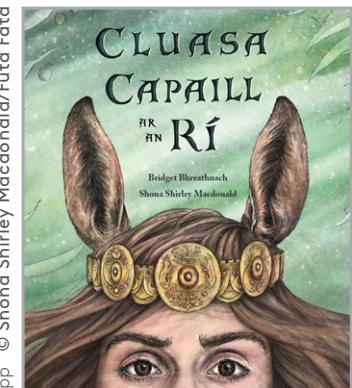

This book has it all: detectives who couldn't be arsed, Gardaí who could, for the right price (maybe), the Russian mafia, hurlers on the ditch, barmaids wise beyond their years, a labyrinthine plot. Truly a fitting Gaelic homage to the works of Hammett and Chandler and a wry affectionate view of twenty-first-century Ireland.

BRIDGET BHREATHNACH A SCRÍOBH,
SHONA SHIRLEY MACDONALD A MHAISIGH
CLUASA CAPAILL AR AN RÍ

Nuair a bheirtear páiste do bhanríon na tíre, tá sí féin agus an rí an-bhuartha: tá cluasa capaill ar an bpáiste. An nglacfaidh muintir na tíre lena mac, Labhraí?

An mbeidh sé in ann a rún aisteach a choinneáil ar feadh a shaoil, fiú nuair a bheidh sé féin ina rí ar an tís?

Seanscéal é seo faoin misneach a theastaíonn uaireanta leis an bhfírinne a insint, is cuma céard a cheapann daoine eile.

When the queen of the land gives birth to a child, both she and the king are very worried: the child has horse's ears. Will the people accept their son, Labhraí?

Will he be able to keep this strange secret throughout his life, even when he becomes king of the land?

This is a legend about the courage that is needed to tell the truth, no matter what other people think.

Emily was being sent, against her will, to a summer college in the Irish-speaking Gaeltacht region – or the Jailtacht, as Emily called it!

GEMMA NIC CONCHRA

CAOILTE CAILLTE SA MHÚSAEM

40 lch/pp

Leabhar pictiúir do pháistí idir 6–9 mbliana d'aois é seo. Is buachaill grámhar é Caoilte ach bíonn sé i dtrioblóid mar gheall ar na rudaí a dhéanann sé. Nuair a théann an rang ar thuras scoile go Músaem Stair an Dúlra, bíonn Caoilte fiosrach agus faigheann sé i dtrioblóid arís. Casann Caoilte le hainmhithe coimhthíocha a chuireann eagla air ar dtús, ach bíonn siad cairdiúil agus oibríonn gach rud amach go maith sa deireadh.

Is leabhar spraíul é seo atá lán de shamhlaiocht agus tá neart léaráidí gleuite ann a thaitníonn go mór le páistí.

Bhain Gemma Nic Conchra céim amach san Ailtireacht agus Dearadh agus chaith sí cúig bliana ag obair sa cheird sin. Rinne sí intíreacht leis an ealaíontóir Adrienne Geoghegan agus rinne teastas iarchéime i gColáiste Bhréiseoideachais Bhaile Formaid ag déanamh staidéir ar an ealaín agus an léaráidíocht. Is breá léi a bheith ag obair le páistí.

This is a picture book for children aged six to nine. Caoilte is a loving boy but he gets into trouble because of the things he does. When the class goes on a school trip to the Natural History Museum, Caoilte becomes nosy and gets into trouble. He meets foreign animals that scare him at first, but they are friendly and everything works out well in the end.

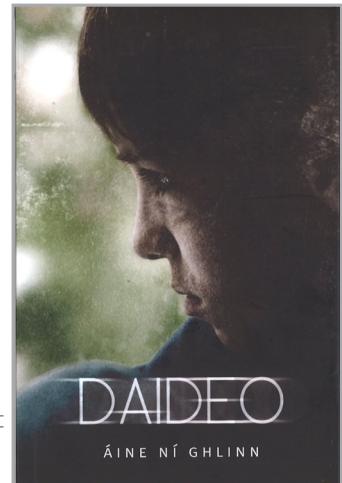

This is a fun book that is full of imagination and plenty of adorable illustrations that children love.

PÁDRAIG Ó SIOCHFHRADHA A SCRÍOBH, RÍONA NIC CONGÁIL A CHUIR IN EAGAR AGUS ANDREW WHITSON A MHAISIGH JIMÍN MHÁIRE THAIDHG

Céad bliain ó céadfhóilsíodh Jimín Mháire Thaidhg, 'An Seabhad' a scríobh, mar eagrán scoile (1921), tugann an t-eagrán maisithe seo léargas úr ar an leabhar is aitheanta i gcorpas litríochta Ghaeilge na n-óg.

Leagan glanta agus giorraithe den scéal a léigh glúine de pháistí scoile Éireannacha, ar baineadh tagairtí don chleamhnsas, caidrimh idir dhaoine fásta agus an bás amach as.

Filleann an t-eagrán seo ar an mbuntéacs agus tugann sé cuntas níos grinne agus níos greannmhaire ar nósanna agus ar chultúr na Gaeltachta ag túis an fhichiú haois.

One hundred years after the publication of the Jimín Mháire Thaidhg schools edition, this illustrated new edition presents the greatest classic of Irish-language children's literature in a whole new light.

The edition read by Irish school children in the twentieth century was a sanitised and abridged version of the original. References to matchmaking, adult relationships and death were removed. The original text is presented here and provides a more insightful and humorous overview of Gaeltacht practices and culture in the early twentieth century.

Fear ildánach, gníomhaí teanga agus scríbhneoir ab ea Pádraig Ó Siadhail, a foilsíodh faoin ainm cleite 'An Seabhad'.

JOHN ÓG Ó COLLA A D'AITHRIS, KIM SHARKEY A MHAISIGH MÓR AGUS MUILC

36 Ich/pp

Bhuaigh an leabhar seo Duais Eilís Dillon ag Children's Books Ireland Awards 2020. Is leabhar álann é atá bunaithe ar scéal traidisiúnta Gaeilge. Cuireann sé síos ar bheirt charachтар agus na heachtraí a thíteann amach nuair a chasann siad le portán ar an trá. Ceapann siad gur 'An Bás' atá ann agus teitheann siad agus eagla orthu. Casann siad le sraith carachтар ar a dteitheadh dóibh agus imíonn siad go léir ag rith ón bportán.

Tá an obair ealaíne thar cionn agus tá dúil ag páistí sna carachtaí dhaite a chastar leo sa leabhar. Foghlaimítar dhá cheacht thábhachtacha: níor cheart ligean don eagla an bua a fháil agus níor cheart éisteacht le gach rud a chloiseann tú.

Rugadh John Óg Ó Colla i nGaeltacht Gaoth Dobhair in 1918. D'obair sé go crua i rith a shaoil, seal ag carróireacht earraí, seal ag obair ar fheirmeacha móra in Albain agus seal maith ag tógáil agus ag deisiú tithe. Bhí John Óg ariamh iontach lách le páistí agus bhí Mór agus Muilc ar cheann de na scéalta a d'insíodh sé dóibh.

Léaráidí le Kim Sharkey

Is ealaíontóir ilmheán í Kim Sharkey a oibríonn le léaráidí, le beochan agus le ceirmeacht. Tá sí ina cónaí i nDún na nGall. Chruathaigh Sharkey an obair ealaíne do chnuasach filíochta Tairseach (2021) le Dairena Ní Chinnéide, a cuireadh ar an ngearrliosta do dhuais Leabhar Gaeilge na Blíana 2021 de chuid Oireachtas na Gaeilge.

This book won the Eilís Dillon Award at the Children's Books Ireland Awards in 2020. It is a lovely book based on a traditional Irish story. It describes two characters and the adventures that ensue when they meet a crab on the beach. They think that it is 'Death' and they run for their lives. They meet a series of characters as they are fleeing and they all run from the crab.

The artistic work is incredible, and children love the colourful characters that they meet throughout the book. They will learn two important lessons: you shouldn't let fear win and you shouldn't listen to everything you hear.

ALAN TITLEY A SCRÍOBH, JOHN WHITE A MHÁISIGH LÚBA

170 lch/po

'Cad ba mhaith leatanois?'

Ní raibh tuairim agam cad a bhí uaim. Conas a bheadh?

'Imeacht, is dócha,' arsa mise. 'Imeacht in áit éigin nach n-aithneofaí mé.'

Tá Lucy ag streachaile leis an saol: a tuismitheoirí, an scoil, a cairde, a smaointe féin fiú. An dtiocfadh léi saol álainn a bheith aici mar atá ag Clúimhín, an cat?

'What would you like now?'

I hadn't a clue what I wanted. How would I?

'To leave, probably,' I said. 'Go to some place where no one knows me.'

Lucy feels the whole world is against her: her parents, her school, her friends, even her own thoughts. She wonders if she could have a nice, contented life like Clúimhín, the family cat. If she was granted that life, though, would it make her happy?

Duine de mhórscríbhneoirí agus de mhórscoláirí na Gaeilge é Alan Titley. Tá idir úrscéalta, ghearrscéalta, dhrámaí don státse agus don raidió, scripteanna teilifise agus shaothair acadúla scríofa aige. Is imreoir cumasach fichille í Éadaoin, iníon taoisigh. Tá sí i ngrá le Mír agus seisean léi siúd. Feiceann siad an saol ag síneadh rompu – eisean ina rí, ise lena thaobh. Ach cuirtear draíocht ar Éadaoin agus seoltar chun siúil í, i bhfad óna grá geal. Tá scéal Éadaoine agus Mhír á insint in Éirinn le breis mhaith agus míle bliain.

Baineann Máire Zepf casadh nua as an seanscéal ina leagan sise agus tugtar draíocht na samhláiochta Gaelaí chun beatha in ealaín aoibhinn Shona Shirley Macdonald.

But Éadaoin is placed under a spell and she is sent away, far away from the love of her life. Éadaoin and Mír's story has been told in Ireland for well over a thousand years.

Máire Zepf gives this legend a new twist and her magical imagination is brought to life in Shona Shirley Macdonald's beautiful artwork.

Tá sí spleodrach tarraingteach agus bíonn sí i gcónai i mbun eachtraí nua. Tá pearsantacht láidir uathúil aici. Níl anseo ach trí shampla ón tsraith.

Tá a seomra leapa ina phraiseach, ach samhlaíonn Rita go bhfuil róbat aici a ghlanfaidh é. Ach cad a tharlódh dá sórtálfadh an róbat rudaí nár chóir dó a shórtáil?

Samhlaíonn sí cailleach a bheith aici agus go mbeidh spraoi agus diabhláiocht ar bun acu. Ach cad é a dhéanfaidh Rita má chuireann an chailleach ruag ar a cairde? Nó má thugann sí bia lofa le hithe di?

Nuir a éiríonn sí crosta, samhlaíonn sí go bhfuil dragún fíochmhar feargach aici a chuirfeadh an domhan ar crith.

Meet Rita. She's a little girl who likes to think big. Rita is a spark of creativity that grew from the creative exploration between illustrator and writer. They wanted to create and design an instantly recognisable and exciting character that the reader could follow fervently. Here are three examples from the series.

Faced with a messy bedroom, she dreams up a robot who will sort every mess. But what if he sorts things he shouldn't?

When she wants wild, unstoppable, spooky fun, she dreams up a witch – but what will happen if the witch scares all her friends? Or gives her stinky food to eat?

When she gets angry, she imagines she has a dragon who can breathe fire. But even a fiery dragon can be soothed, given some time and a little understanding.

Insíonn Deoraithe (Exiles) le Dónall Mac Amhlaigh scéal na nÉireannach a d'oibrigh i Sasana agus a chum amhráin agus scéalta maidir le Camden Town, Cricklewood agus Islington. Is ionann é agus scéal folaithe na nÉireannach i mBreatain na fichiú haoise.

Tugadh an ghlúin chiúin orthu toisc nár scríobhadh móran cuntas maidir leis an saol agus an taithí a bhí acu. Is iniúchadh iontach é seo ar shaol Bheairtle agus Nóra agus an turas imirce ó iarthar na hÉireann go dtí na mór-ionaid uirbeacha sa Bhreatain sa tréimhse iarchogaidh.

Dónall Mac Amhlaigh's Deoraithe (Exiles) tells the story of the working-class Irish who made Camden Town, Cricklewood and Islington part of their songs and stories. It is the hidden narrative of the Irish in twentieth-century Britain.

Termed the 'silent generation' because of the relatively few written accounts of their lives and experiences, this is their story. It is a masterful exploration of the lives of Bartley and Nora and their emigrant journey from the west of Ireland to the urban centres of post-war Britain.

The English translation was published by Parthian Books.

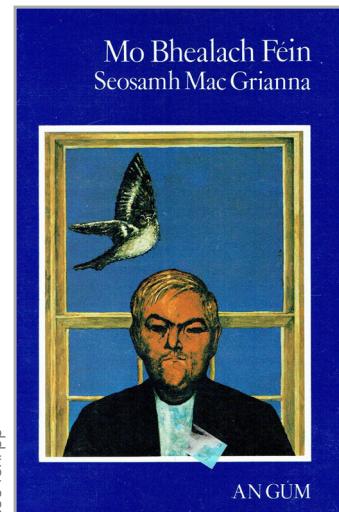

Dónall Mac Amhlaigh was born in Galway in 1926. He spent some time in the Irish army before emigrating to Northampton, England, where he worked as a labourer. He later became a writer, producing a number of novels and short stories, as well as social history. He was also a prolific journalist. He died in January 1989.

Mícheál Ó hAodha was born in Galway and grew up between the west of Ireland and the north of England. He is an Irish-language poet and a translator and a part-time lecturer at the University of Limerick.

Seo Mac Grianna. Is scríbhneoir é. Is fuath leis a fhostóir, airgead agus éagóir – is fearr leis áilleacht, ealaíon agus an bealach mór. Is deacair cur síos a dhéanamh air toisc go bhfuil sé contrártha. Tá sé spadhrúil. Ní focann sé cíos uaireanta, ach ansin tugann sé airgead ar iasacht do thiarna bocht gioblach.

Cuireann Mícheál Ó hAodha Béarla ar ghlór géar Sheosaimh Mhic Grianna, a ghreann dubh agus an fhís ghéar atá aige ar Éirinn mharsantach na 1930í. Foilsíodh Mo Bhealach Féin den chéad uair in 1940. Is soiníci agus rógaire é Mac Grianna, idéalaí agus ealaíontóir.

Meet Mac Grianna. He's a writer. He hates his employer, hates money and hates injustice – he prefers beauty, art and the open road. Dodging rent one minute and lending money to a down-at-heel lord the next, yielding to violent impulses and embracing misfits, he's a hard man to pin down, in more ways than one – a walking contradiction.

Mícheál Ó hAodha brings alive Seosamh Mac Grianna's searing tone, dark humour and stark vision of the mercantile Ireland of the 1930s in this vibrant translation from the Irish of Mo Bhealach Féin (first published in 1940). Mac Grianna is a cynic and a rogue, an idealist and an artist, always impassioned. His voice speaks to our times.

MÁIRTÍN Ó CADHAIN A SCRÍOBH, ALAN TITLEY A D'AISTRIGH FUÍOLL FUINE / THE DREGS OF THE DAY

Tá an scéal dírithe ar 'N', fear a bhfuil a bheandíreach tar éis bás a fhail. Anois ní mór do N na socruithe sochraide a dhéanamh agus adhlacóir a aimsiú. Cosúil le carachtair i saothair le Kafka, Sartre agus Beckett, is carachтар é N atá faoi bhrón. Tá a phearsantacht, a spiorad, a shaorise agus fiú a dhaonnacht buailte amach as agus níl sé in ann cinneadh neamhspleách a dhéanamh faoi rud ar bith. Is í an imní an priomhthionchar ina shaol agus is í an t-aon rud a thiomáineann a iompraíocht agus a chuid gníomhaíochtaí uile. Sa scéal seo déantar scrúdú ar shaol ina bhfuil Dia marbh agus ina bhfuil an laoch caillte.

Yale University Press a d'fhoilsigh an t-aistriúchán Béarla.

Tá Máirtín Ó Cadhain (1906–1970) ar dhuine de mhórscríbhneoirí na Gaeilge.

Alan Titley a d'aistrigh

Is údar, scríbhneoir drámaí agus scoláire é Alan Titley. Tá cónai air i mBaile Átha Cliath agus scríobhann sé ailt do The Irish Times maidir le cursaí cultúrtha.

The story centres on 'N', a man whose wife has just died. N now has to make the funeral arrangements and organise an undertaker. Like characters in works of Kafka, Sartre and Beckett, N is a character who is bereft. His personality, spirit, freedom and even his humanity have been beaten out of him and he is unable to make an independent decision about anything. Anxiety is the primary driving force of his life and it is what propels his behaviour and all of his actions. This story examines a life in which God is dead and the hero is lost.

This English translation is published by Yale University Press.

Seo an chéad uair a fheictear Lewy i mBéarla, é sé bliana d'aois, agus a chuntas uathúil, bunaithe ar bhraistint maidir le tréimhse achrannach ag túis na 1920í.

Déanann sé iarracht ciall a bhaint as gach rud agus é ag an aonach lena athair díshlóghtha cathshuaite; é faoi bhord a mháthar, ar maintín í, agus í ag tomhas na gcliant; é ag tabhairt aire dá dheardháireacha agus deirfiúracha ar an bhFaiche os comhair Theach na mBocht; é sínte i gcuimhní de Rosaleen McNally, agus an cnámharlach sa ghaineamh.

Glór beoga croíúil arna aistriú ón nGaeilge ag Micheál Ó hAodha. Aistriúchán de An Lomnochtán (1977) le hEoghan Ó Tuairisc. Bullaun Press a d'fhoilsigh.

Rugadh Eoghan Ó Tuairisc (1919–1982) i mBéal Átha na Sluaighe, Contae na Gaillimhe. Bhí sé dáttheangach agus scríobh sé dánta, drámaí, úrscéalta agus léirmheasanna. Bhí sé ina mhúinteoir bunscoile agus chum sé geamaireachtaí. Bhí sé i gcónaí chun tosaigh sa saol liteartha. Ba chomhalta d'Aosdána é.

Mícheál Ó hAodha a d'aistrigh

Is aistritheoir aitheanta é Micheál Ó hAodha, chomh maith le file Gaeilge, scoláire agus scríbhneoir neamhfhicsin. Tá spéis faoi leith aige i mionlach na nGaeilgeoirí in iarthar na hÉireann, chomh maith leis an Lucht Siúil agus imircigh na hÉireann.

This is the first appearance in English of six-year-old Lewy and his unique, impressionistic account of a tumultuous few months in the early 1920s.

At the fair with his demobbed, slightly shellshocked father, under his seamstress mother's table while she measures the clients, minding his siblings on the green across from the workhouse, entangled with memories of 'Brazenface' Rosaleen McNally in the enclosure by the Earl's Wood, and the skeleton in the sandpit, he tries to get his head around it all.

A vivid, warm voice brought to us from the Irish by Micheál Ó hAodha, and published by Bullaun Press, in this translation of Eoghan Ó Tuairisc's novella An Lomnochtán (1977).
